Respiratory Protection

Dräger Filter Selection Guide

Contaminants come in different forms – generally: aerosols (solids / particles) and gases (gases, vapours). You can choose between the filter types to protect against one of these forms or a combination of both of them. Solids / particles: Dusts, fibres, fumes, microorganisms (e.g. viruses, bacteria, fungi, spores) and mists. Gaseous substances: Gases and vapours. The following table shows you the colour coding of filters according to EN 14387 – which helps you to determine which filter-type is needed for the contaminants you are dealing with.

COLOUR	FILTER TYPE	CONTAMINANTS PRESENT
	AX	Gases and vapours of organic compounds with boiling point < 65°C
	A	Gases and vapours of organic compounds with boiling point > 65°C
	B	Inorganic gases and vapours, e.g. chlorine, hydrogen sulphide, hydrogen cyanide
	E	Sulphur dioxide, hydrogen chloride
	K	Ammonia and organic ammonia derivatives

COLOUR	FILTER TYPE	CONTAMINANTS PRESENT
	CO	Carbon monoxide
	Hg	Mercury vapour
	NO	Nitrous gases including nitrogen monoxide
	Reactor	Radioactive iodine including radioactive methyl iodide
	P	Particles

EXAMPLE: A2B2-P3

A filter with the above mentioned colour code is suitable for the following contaminants:

A - gases and vapours of organic compounds with a boiling point > 65°C up to concentrations covered by filter class 2 (max. 5000 ppm) and B - inorganic gases and vapours, e.g. chlorine, hydrogen sulphide, hydrogen cyanide, up to concentrations covered by filter class 2 (max. 5000 ppm) and P - particles up to concentrations covered by filter class 3.
